

LABOUR VALUE – TRADE UNIONS AND THE POLITICS OF THE COMMON GOOD

Trade Unions have been an essential force for social change

Jon Cruddas, MP

Wednesday 25th February 2015,
18:00

University of Warwick
(Venue to be confirmed upon registration)

Jon Cruddas MP will be leading a thought-provoking talk on the need to rethink the role of trade unions as a force for the common good in our post-industrial society. Prioritising vocational education and worker representation and putting labour value back into the heart of our political economy.

Warwick Arts Centre is hosting a number of Imagining the Future talks as part of the Vice-Chancellor's Distinguished Lecture Series in celebration of the University of Warwick's 50th Anniversary.

Members of the public, students and staff all welcome.

Tickets are free-of-charge and all bookings must be made in advance via the Arts Centre Box Office 024 7652 4524.
