Centre for Cultural Policy Studies
Academic policymaking is a complex and multidisciplinary field that requires an understanding of various aspects such as policy formulation, implementation, and evaluation. It involves stakeholders from different sectors, including government, academia, and civil society. The Centre for Cultural Policy Studies at the University of Warwick focuses on the interdisciplinary approach to cultural policy, aiming to promote evidence-based decision-making and policy innovation. The Centre collaborates with government agencies, cultural organizations, and academic institutions to conduct research and provide insights into the development of cultural policies. By engaging with policymakers and practitioners, the Centre aims to enhance the effectiveness and impact of cultural policies at national and international levels. Simultaneously, the Centre also collaborates with government agencies, cultural organizations, and academic institutions to conduct research and provide insights into the development of cultural policies.
