The Departments of History and French Studies at the University of Warwick are holding a one-day conference on July 1st 2014 on the popular reactions in Europe and beyond to Napoleon’s dramatic return to France and his brief reign and overthrow. Papers will identify a range of objects and speak to their significance as part of a story about how people reacted to and understood the return of Napoleon from Elba and his 100 day restoration as ruler of France.

The conference will take place on the Warwick campus from 10.00am-6.00pm and will be followed by a ‘performance’ and by dinner. Overnight accommodation can be arranged.
