

TEACHING CLASSICAL DRAMA: A PEDAGOGICAL FORUM

September 12, 2013, 1-3 p.m.,
Classics Faculty, University of Oxford

Organised as part of the international conference
THEATRUM MUNDI: LATIN DRAMA IN RENAISSANCE EUROPE
(12-14 September)

PEDAGOGICAL FORUM:

Intended for teachers of classical drama in schools, colleges and universities, this forum will offer the chance to meet and share ideas and practice. We will discuss teaching ancient drama in the original languages as well as in English translation. The forum will include short talks from invited speakers working in secondary and higher education, and following the talks there will be a number of workshop events.

Confirmed speakers include: Judith Affleck (Head of Classics, King Edward VI School, Stratford-upon-Avon), Peter Brown (Classics, Trinity College, Oxford), Gesine Manuwald (Professor of Latin, Department of Greek and Latin, University College London), and Helen Slaney (Junior Research Fellow, Classics, St Hilda's College, Oxford).

SCHOOLS TALK:

The forum will be followed by a talk for 16-19 year-olds entitled 'Roman Drama in Renaissance England', given by Sarah Knight (Senior Lecturer in Renaissance Literature, School of English, University of Leicester). The schools event will last from 3-5 p.m. During that time, there will be the opportunity for teachers attending the pedagogical forum to visit the Archive of Performances of Greek and Roman Drama (also based in the Classics faculty) and a Latin drama-related exhibition across the road at St John's College.

Please contact Sarah Knight (sk218@le.ac.uk) or Mai Musié (mai.musie@classics.ox.ac.uk) if you have any questions. The forum is free to attend, but numbers are limited to 60 (teachers + students), and places will be allocated on a first-come, first-served basis.
