In support of the development of an original stage play about the World War One Chinese labourers, Moongate Productions in association with Dr. Diana Yeh present a discussion event focusing on these migrant Chinese workers, their story, their place in history and why that story belongs on the stage

Strangers In A Strange Land: The World War One Chinese Labour Corps, their place in history, their place on the stage

The long buried story of the approximately 140,000 Chinese labourers who lent vital assistance to the allied Great War effort is only now beginning to emerge. These mainly poor, uneducated and illiterate peasants are very much the “forgotten of the forgotten”. Yet, ironically their role in the history of China, and its relationship with the Western world, is undeniably significant.

Guest speakers: Ross Forman (Warwick University) Paul French (author), Steve Lau (Ensuring We Remember Campaign), Mark O’Neil (author and journalist) Daniel York Loh (playwright).

On: 1st December, 5–7pm, at: S0.09 in the Social Sciences Building, Warwick University, Coventry CV4 7AL

The event is free of charge.

Please RSVP to gemma@act-up.co.uk
