Response to feedback for ST912 Statistical Frontiers, Initial Module Evaluations 2013

I thank the students for their feedback. This is a difficult module to evaluate because each week is overseen by a different lecturer. However, based on this small sample the feedback was almost all positive. There appeared to be no overall complaints about the module, and no suggestions for any module reorganization. It is quite a flexible course and I welcome suggestions on issues such as: Is nine sessions in total optimal? Should the sessions be shunted to the first half of term where possible (as has been done this year)? Are the rooms appropriate?

Paul Jenkins